

Members of the FCC,

I am greatly concerned regarding the current FCC review of the cross-ownership ban. Reversal of this ban will in no way serve to improve the quality of media news coverage in the United States. Allowing media corporations to further monopolize news outlets will drive the coverage into a greater state of corporate control and further limit the quality of news reporting. This will degrade the media's accountability and limit access to important civic issues. Your positions in the FCC are to defend EVERYONES access to responsible, accurate and accountable media communications. If this ban is overturned the FCC will have only acted to serve only the "best" interests, or bottom line, of a few large corporate media conglomerates and your members will have failed to serve the Constitution which you have sworn to uphold as well as the people of the U.S. and around the world.

Thank you,

Jason Wilkinson
